Improved Sheep Dip Proves Production Aid

Smaller Quantity of Derris Now Kquired

LATEST boon for sheep raisers comes from the U. S. department of agriculture in the form of an effective, economical and easily prepared dipping solution for ridding sheep of ticks.

Six ounces of derris powder containing 5 per cent rotenone are mixed with a little water to make a thin paste and then diluted in 100 gallons of water. Cube powder, also containing rotenone, may be substituted for derris.

Despite the limited supply of rotenone currently being imported into the U. S., flock owners may arrange for allocations to suit their needs. Control of sheep ticks is one of the authorized uses. Less than half as much derris or cube powder is needed to kill sheep ticks as was formerly thought necessary.

Dips made with derris or cube powders are not only easy to prepare, but save labor, since one dipping is enough. Most other sheep dips commonly used required two applications about 24 days apart, the first to kill adult ticks and the second to kill the new crop. The rotenone in the new dip kills both the tick and the pupae in one dipping, and remains effective in the fleece for several weeks.

Another advantage of the method is that unheated water from practically any source can be used. The presence of alkali or clay does not reduce the effectiveness of the new dip. However, pure clean water is best.

Veterinarians of the department's bureau of animal industry studied the effects of dips of various strengths. None of the dipped sheep nor their fleece suffered any ill effects.

Reveal B-29s Get Fuel From Aerial Tankers

DAYTON, OHIO.—Another chapter in the story of B-29 strikes against Japan unfolded recently with disclosure that China based Superforts draw their fuel, in part, from gasoline flown "over the hump" by specially four-engined tankers.

The air technical service command, with headquarters at Wright field, described the aerial tankers as stripped B-24 Liberators. So completely are the converted craft — known as C-109s—given over to their task that their own gasoline is drawn directly from the cargo tanks.

The ATSC said that while other planes, including the C-46, C-47, and C-54 "can also deliver fuel in drums, the C-109 has by far the greatest carrying capacity with its specially designed tanks in the nose, wings, bomb bay, and fuselage." No figure was given.

Adjust Eye

An eye adapted to brightly illuminated white walls is hardly in a right condition to examine a piece of grayish metal, black leather, or tan-ish wood. Two alternatives are offered by way of improvement. If the general lighting of the interior is ample, then the walls must surely be toned down, so that the conspicuous thing within the room will be the task and not the environment. Or if the illumination is weak, supplementary lighting may have to be installed—the walls left as they are, white or otherwise. If the interior is cold and vaulty, the psychological benefits of a warm tone (ivory, buff should by all means be capitalized. Should the working operation involve high temperatures, then the colors to introduce are cool ones (blues and greens).

How to Greet a Wounded Soldier

Charlie Jenkins got back from overseas the other day, discharged for wounds. . . and he was pretty well banged up.

Naturally, our town felt mighty bad about it. We wanted to sympathize with him and help him. But Doc Walters set us straight about that.

He said that what Charlie wanted most was to be accepted as one of the gang again . . . as if nothing had happened. So we asked him over to pitch horseshoes with his good hand, and enjoy a friendly glass of beer and chew the fat like old times.

And you should have seen him pick up! From being scared of meeting people, Charlie got his confidence back and soon became his own self again.

From where I sit, Doc Walters gave us the right steer. The wounded men coming home don't want our sympathy or our overenthusiastic help. They want to be treated like the rest of us . . . with a chance to work and lead a normal life. And that's the least we can offer them.
